Empower your workforce to access their HCM information while they work – all within Slack

Enable your employees, who already use Slack for team collaboration, to access their own workforce information without leaving Slack. ADP's integration with Slack allows your workforce to obtain their information in a safe and private manner. First, your HR practitioner subscribes to this app. Next, after enabling specific widgets, your workforce can begin using ADP for Slack. Explicit consent and account linking is required by each employee before returning any personal information to Slack.

Features and Benefits

Your Slack users can access their latest pay information.

Your employees, on Slack, can view their latest pay information without disrupting their workflow. They can access their ADP Pay without leaving a familiar environment.

Slack users can easily adopt ADP for Slack.

Many employees in your workforce are already using Slack to collaborate throughout the day. ADP integrated with Slack provides them with easy access to the information they want - when they want it.

You control what your employees see.

Key features are packaged as widgets within the app. By enabling and disabling widgets, you can control what your employees may access.

Your employees' information is kept private.

From personal details to deductions, their information is only visible to them. Users provide explicit consent and must link their ADP account before any information is sent to Slack.
